What is a rallar?

- Rallaren was a construction worker who participated in development of railways, mines and other construction operations.
- Rallaren was a skilled worker with a love for his profession and had great professional pride.
- Even in modern times, the expression "Rallar" remains among the construction workers.
- Until Ofotbanen was decided to be built, Narvik was only a few farms.
- Until the opening of Ofotbanen on 15 November 1902, there was hectic activity where several thousand rallars worked hard in the mountains to complete the railway.
- Most of the construction workers lived in the heart of the Ofotfjord in Rombaksbotn.

Ofofbanen is the 43km long railway the rallars built from Sweden to Norway.

- Today, 10-12 ore trains run in each direction every day.
- The ore trains run for the mining company LKAB.
- Ofofbanen is also an important freight corridor for the entire Nordic region and 90% of the grocery supply to northern Norway goes by train via Narvik.
